During my employment interview I was informed that it is the policy of the Department of Social Services to validate the information given on my Application for Employment including certain background reviews. The procedure for validation and background reviews will consist of the following:

- a. Verification through appropriate contacts (including my former employers) of information on the Application for Employment;
- b. A State Law Enforcement Division (SLED) criminal background record check on me (this review is conducted through personal information such as name, social security number, address, date of birth, race and sex). The staff of DSS Human Resources along with other appropriate staff of the South Carolina Department of Social Services will review any arrest and conviction data supplied by SLED for the purpose of offering me employment with the Department. - c. A check of the South Carolina Central Registry (Child Abuse and/Neglect) and SCDSS's Child and Adult Protective Services System database; and

This will satisfy the requirement of (b). (Certification of Non-Conviction statement must also be completed which outlines fingerprint requirements/process.)

Also, I understand that it is my responsibility to provide a certified official college transcript prior to the first day of employment, or within 10 calendar days of hire. NON-CRIMINAL JUSTICE APPLICANT PRIVACY RIGHTS NOTIFICATION

As an applicant who is the subject of a national fingerprint-based criminal history record check for a noncriminal justice purpose (such as an application for a job or license, an immigration or naturalization matter, security clearance, or adoption), you have certain rights as outlined below:

- You are entitled to written notification that your fingerprints and associated information (biometrics) will be used to check the criminal history records maintained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), when a federal record check is so authorized.
- If you have an FBI criminal history record, the officials making a determination of your suitability for the job, license, or other benefit must provide you the opportunity to complete or challenge the accuracy of the information in the record.
- If you decide to challenge the accuracy or completeness of your FBI criminal history record, you should send your challenge to the agency that contributed the questioned information to the FBI. Alternatively, you may send your challenge directly to the FBI. The FBI will then forward your challenge to the agency that contributed the questioned information and request the agency to verify or correct the challenged entry. Upon receipt of an official communication from that agency, the FBI will make any necessary changes/corrections to your record in accordance with the information supplied by that agency. (See 28 CFR 16.30 through 16.34.)
- If you have a FBI criminal history record, procedures for obtaining a change, correction, or update of your record are set forth at Title 28, Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), Section 16.34.
- If you have a criminal history record, you should be afforded a reasonable amount of time to correct or complete the record (or decline to do so) before the officials deny you the job, license, or other benefit based on information in the criminal history record.
- You may obtain a copy of your criminal history record by submitting fingerprints and a fee to the FBI. Information regarding this process may be obtained at <http://www.fbi.gov/about-us/cjis/background-checks>.
- You have the right to expect that officials receiving the results of your criminal history record check will use it solely for the purpose requested and will not disseminate the record outside the receiving departments, related agencies, or other authorized entities.
- In addition, the South Carolina Law Enforcement Division (SLED) will store your fingerprints and provide the SC Department of Social Services (DSS) with notification of any arrests that occur in South Carolina.
